Joint Statement

Brief Partnership Statement

March 7, 2016

AURORA PRIZE
FOR AWAKENING HUMANITY

Overview

Below is a brief statement drafted to announce the 100 LIVES and ICFJ partnership. Modelled after the approved release, this abridged piece of content can be leveraged by 100 LIVES for its website content, social media posts, or other written and spoken communications.

Joint Statement

"Today, the International Center for Journalists (ICFJ) and 100 LIVES announce the launch of the ICFJ Award for Integrity in Journalism in partnership with the Aurora Prize. The award will honor the courage, commitment and impact of an individual reporting from the frontlines of the world's most pressing humanitarian crises. Recognizing excellence in covering crimes against humanity, the ICFJ Award for Integrity in Journalism will be presented in April alongside the inaugural Aurora Prize for Awakening Humanity, which is given in the spirit of those who risked their lives to save Armenians a hundred years ago. Together, our two organizations are proud to advance our commitment to tell the world's much-needed stories of humanity and hope."

100 LIVES PARTNERS WITH LEADING JOURNALISM NONPROFIT TO LAUNCH REPORTING AWARD

The Award for Integrity in Journalism honors those who expose crimes against humanity

09 March 2016 –YEREVAN, ARMENIA - 100 LIVES and the International Center for Journalists (ICFJ) announce the creation of an award to recognize courageous reporters who bring humanitarian crises to the world's attention.

The ICFJ Award for Integrity in Journalism in partnership with the Aurora Prize, will be presented at a 100 LIVES ceremony on April 24 in Yerevan, Armenia. 100 LIVES is an organization that celebrates those who helped Armenians during the genocide one hundred years ago and supports people and organizations that keep the legacy of gratitude alive.

100 LIVES will also give its inaugural Aurora Prize for Awakening Humanity to honor heroes who continue the spirit of responsibility and compassion today. ICFJ will join 100 LIVES to announce the recipient of the journalism award in Yerevan.

"I cannot overstate the impact that journalism can have on illuminating and alleviating human suffering," says 100 LIVES co-founder Ruben Vardanyan. "At the time of the Armenian Genocide, sustained commitment and coverage by international journalists helped spur others to act and intervene. Today, we see that commitment continue in places like Syria, Sudan and other war zones around the world."

In that same spirit, the ICFJ Award for Integrity in Journalism will be given to a journalist who sheds light on important humanitarian issues in difficult environments. The recipient demonstrates unparalleled courage in covering the plight of imperiled communities and unwavering commitment to integrity, freedom and justice. The coverage inspires others to take action to save lives.

"ICFJ is honored to work with 100 LIVES to emphasize the crucial role journalists play in telling the stories of persecution in hot spots around the world," says ICFJ President Joyce Barnathan. "We're delighted to recognize journalists in this meaningful way."

About 100 LIVES

100 LIVES is a new global initiative rooted in the events of the Armenian Genocide, during which 1.5 million Armenians perished. The fortunate few were saved by the courageous and heroic acts of individuals and institutions. A century later, 100 LIVES seeks to express gratitude, to share remarkable stories of survivors and their saviors, and to celebrate the strength of the human spirit.

SELECTION COMMITTEE MEETS TO DELIBERATE ON AURORA PRIZE FINALISTS

By 100 LIVES

The esteemed members of the Aurora Prize Selection Committee convened in New York today to deliberate over the three finalists of the inaugural Aurora Prize for Awakening Humanity.

The international humanitarian leaders who compose the Aurora Prize for Awakening Humanity's Selection Committee convened today to discuss the final candidates chosen from an impressive and robust pool of global nominations for the inaugural award. Candidates were assessed based on supporting evidence detailing their backgrounds and experience with a particular focus on the degree to which they exhibit courage, demonstrate commitment to their cause and demonstrate a positive impact to their communities.

"It is an honor to evaluate such exceptional candidates who have risked so much of themselves to save others," said Selection Committee Member and 100 LIVES Co-Founder, Vartan Gregorian. "As a member of the Selection Committee, I am gratified that the spirit of humanity which resulted in Armenians being saved 100 years ago continues today, and is evidenced in the caliber of candidates put forth for this inaugural prize."

The Aurora Prize Selection Committee is co-chaired by Nobel Laureate Elie Wiesel and Academy-award winning actor and humanitarian George Clooney, and includes Nobel Laureates Oscar Arias, Shirin Ebadi and Leymah Gbowee; former President of Ireland Mary Robinson; human rights activist Hina Jilani; former Australian Foreign Minister and President Emeritus of the International Crisis Group Gareth Evans; and President of the Carnegie Corporation of New York Vartan Gregorian.

The Aurora Prize was founded to celebrate the spirit of humanity demonstrated by those who intervened on behalf of persecuted Armenians one hundred years ago. It is named after Aurora Mardiganian, who, as a child, bore witness to the atrocities of the Armenian Genocide and committed the rest of her life to providing humanitarian relief.

The Aurora Prize will ultimately be presented to the final Aurora Prize Laureate by Selection Committee Co-Chair George Clooney at the inaugural prize ceremony in Yerevan, Armenia on April 24, 2016. The Aurora Prize Laureate will be honored with a $100,000 award and the unique opportunity to continue the cycle of giving by nominating the organization that inspired their work for a $1 million grant.

Aurora Prize Laureate Marguerite Barankitse Addresses the UN World Humanitarian Summit

Marguerite Barankitse speaks at the UN's World Humanitarian Summit, a gathering of 5,000 politicians and leaders from the global humanitarian community

MAY 24, 2016 – ISTANBUL, TURKEY – In her first public address as Aurora Prize Laureate, Marguerite Barankitse will discuss how grassroots initiatives in conflict-afflicted communities are influencing humanitarian engagement and shifting the rules of engagement.

Marguerite will participate in the 'People at the Centre' Special Session during the two-day Summit in Istanbul, Turkey. Outlining the objectives for the session, the United Nations states: "The Summit must mark a major shift in humanitarian action to truly empower affected people as the driving force of any humanitarian response."

Having rescued over 30,000 orphaned children during the years of civil war in Burundi, Marguerite is living proof of the power of one individual to effect change for thousands.

Her approach is one of empowerment, "It is the local people who determine the kind of future that they want to build," Marguerite Barankitse explains. "My organization Maison Shalom is now trying to finance education for refugees. I want them to go back to Burundi as doctors and agronomists, not as rebels with weapons in their hands. It's about giving young people hope and a life with dignity."

The first-ever World Humanitarian Summit, convened by UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon, will take place from 23 to 24 May 2016. Following three years of extensive consultations with more than 23,000 people in 153 countries, this will be the moment for global leaders to answer their overwhelming call for a renewed commitment to humanity. Approximately 5,000 participants representing Heads of State and global leaders from government, business, aid organizations, civil society, affected communities and youth groups, are expected to attend the Summit.

Marguerite from Maison Shalom and REMA Hospital in Burundi was named as the inaugural Aurora Prize Laureate on April, 24, at a ceremony in Yerevan, Armenia.

The public call for nominations for the 2017 Aurora Prize will open on June 1. For more details visit www.auroraprize.com.

About the UN World Humanitarian Summit

The first-ever World Humanitarian Summit, set to take place in Istanbul on 23-24 May 2016, is a global call to action by United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon.

The Summit has three main goals: to re-inspire and reinvigorate a commitment to humanity and to the universality of humanitarian principles; to initiate a set of concrete actions and commitments aimed at enabling countries and communities to better prepare for and respond to crises, and be resilient to shocks; and to share best practices which can help save lives around the world, put affected people at the center of humanitarian action, and alleviate suffering.

The Summit will be held at the highest political level possible, including Heads of States or Government. The Summit will include approximately 5,000 participants representing global leaders from government, business, aid organizations, civil society, affected communities and youth, among others.

Key Yukos Insider Reveals Billion-Dollar Bribery Scheme

New testimony in Yukos case shows details of how Khodorkovsky, Nevzlin and other Russian Oligarchs fixed Yukos privatization

Revelations demonstrate that U.S. investors were defrauded during Oligarchs' sale of Yukos ADRs and ultimately lost billions

Washington D.C., August 8, 2016 – The Russian Federation has submitted the Declaration of Mr. Dmitry Gololobov in the Yukos case before the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia: Hulley Enterprises Ltd., Yukos Universal Ltd., Veteran Petroleum Ltd. v. The Russian Federation, 14-CV-1996 (D.D.C.).

Mr. Gololobov is the first key Yukos insider to come forward to speak in specific detail about the billion-dollar bribery scheme run by the former majority shareholders (the "Oligarchs") of Yukos. Mr. Gololobov has lived in London, England, since 2004, and did not agree to testify regarding his former employers' criminal activities until 2016.

Mr. Gololobov served as Yukos Deputy General Counsel and was a member of the Oligarchs' inner circle from 1995 to 2004. During that time, he learned firsthand how the Oligarchs rigged the Russian government's "loans-for-shares" auctions in 1995 and 1996 to illegally acquire ownership of Yukos.

As Mr. Gololobov testifies, his former employers were able to manipulate the privatization, in part, by promising kickbacks to the government-appointed managers (the "Red Directors") charged with administering part of the "loans-for-shares" privatization process. The Red Directors were promised 15 percent of the proceeds of any sale tied to the oligarchs' Yukos shares. Based on the price of Yukos shares, this could have amounted to between one and two billion U.S. dollars. Bank records show that at least hundreds of millions of dollars were ultimately paid under this corrupt agreement.

Andrey Kondakov, the Director General of the International Centre for Legal Protection, which was formed by the Russian Federation to fight this case, said, "Mr. Gololobov's testimony represents another step forward. It confirms the corruption, fraud and bribery perpetrated by the Oligarchs at the expense of the Russian people and it validates the position that the Russian Federation has maintained throughout the Yukos case – that the Oligarchs' arguments are just lies about lies."

In fact, Mr. Gololobov's testimony chronicles the web of fraud and deception that the Oligarchs wove before, during and after their tenure at Yukos. Between 2001 and 2003, for example, the Oligarchs did not disclose material information to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and U.S. investors when they sold American Depositary Receipts (ADRs) for Yukos on U.S. securities markets. At the same time, the Oligarchs concealed information from their own U.S.-based lawyers and accountants for fear of disclosing too much regarding past illegal activities, which would have precluded the ADR sale.

As Mr. Gololobov notes in his testimony:

"One of the key questions ... was how to conceal the Oligarchs' illegal activities in 1995 and 1996 (which we referred to as the 'old sins'), while still providing enough detail in the registration statements to satisfy the SEC."

These revelations demonstrate that U.S. investors were ultimately defrauded and tricked into buying property which the Oligarchs obtained through collusive bidding and corruption from the Russian people. Under the Russian Presidential Decree establishing the "loans-for-shares" program such collusive bidding rendered the transfer of shares null and void. The U.S. investors later lost billions after the Oligarchs' corrupt schemes (including their well-documented tax evasion) collapsed.

The Russian Federation will continue to use all legal avenues to prevent the Oligarchs from extracting any further money from the Russian people. Notably:

- In April 2016, the District Court of The Hague annulled the Oligarchs' arbitration awards based on the fact that the Russian Federation never ratified the international treaty under which they were rendered, the Energy Charter Treaty. This judgment deprived the arbitration awards of all legal effect. The Oligarchs have indicated their intent to appeal this Dutch judgment, and the Russian Federation will oppose the appeal.
- Despite the annulment in The Hague, the Oligarchs have refused to drop their parallel lawsuits against the Russian Federation in Belgium, France, the United Kingdom, and the United States. During the past two weeks, however, the Oligarchs have dropped their lawsuits in Germany and India.
